A layer of foam riser pad was found to be installed into the tray side some Road Hog 4 road cases. This would be located underneath the console chassis, and could cause a problem by compressing the armrest pad and deforming it when the top case cover is installed. Removing this layer of foam as shown will correct the problem.